

WOMAN BANDIT HELD TO ANSWER

After listening for over an hour to evidence which is at once various and contradictory, Justice of the Peace Ray Griffin held Elizabeth Sanders, alias Georgia Bradley of San Francisco over to the Superior court on the charges of slugging W. R. Brooks, Downsville mining man.

The assault is alleged to have taken place on Sept. 20 at Portageuse Hill, somewhere north of the Tantoran race track in this county. Brooks and Miss Sanders were in a taxi driven by a driver called Jack O'Connor, who it is said, is a brother of Policewoman Catherine O'Connor of San Francisco. They had been for a ride along the beach, and were testified at the preliminary hearing that they were returning to the beach and he had asked the driver to take him to his hotel. The driver, however, continued to drive further out into the country. At a point near the Sixteen Mile House, O'Connor is said to have stopped and stepping to the door of the cab, struck Brooks on the head several times with an iron bar.

When Brooks was on his ride on Sept. 20, he had $175 in cash.

September 1934, he sold nuggets from his mine and a number of private parties. When he was found the next morning, lying beside the highway by the driver of one of the P. R. T. buses, he was without any of these nuggets and without an overcoat, but his knife and practically all other personal property of any value. Some of the nuggets taken from Brooks' person were subsequently sold and turned in to Miss O'Connor's apartment on Post street, San Francisco. Brooks at the trial still carried a number of bad checks in his forehead, said to have been administered by O'Connor, who is now being sought by the police.

BRINGS MOTHER'S ASHES
FROM THE EAST

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ralston of Washington, D. C. were invited to attend the funeral. Mrs. Ralston died Thursday. Mrs. Ralston, formerly Mildred Thrush, a former resident of this town and graduate of Sequoia Union High School, came west with the ashes of her mother, the late Mrs. W. H. Ralston, who was buried in the family plot at Pescadero, and the remains of Mr. Ralston and also the late Captain Lloyd E. Ralston of the United States Army.

Mrs. Ralston was a member of the Redwood Club and the Women's Club and the Congregational church. Her home was on Hopkins avenue, Redwood City.

For several years the president of the Redwood Club section, near San Diego, never been well since the death of Mr. Ralston. Mrs. Ralston has never been well since the death of her son, Lloyd, who was one of the first two victims at the time of the

The deceased came to Redwood City as a girl and remained here for some time with her uncle, the late Levy Bartholomew, a pioneer hotel-keeper of Redwood City. At that time she became acquainted with Mr. Weston. She went east, however, and was married to Mr. Thrush. After his death, twenty years later, she came west and was married to her former fiancée, Mrs. Reuben, who had a very considerable fortune when she was bequeathed to her daughter, Mrs. Stoddard.

MAN STRUCK BY

SEQUOIA STUDENT

During a parade of Sequoia students yesterday afternoon, advertising the ball game today at the end of the season, a Sequoia girl struck and knocked down Raymond Zacher of San Francisco. Zacher was hurried to the office of Dr. J. H. O'Brien, where emergency treatment was given to him.

According to a badly cut head and numerous bruises. He was taken to a hospital and is expected to proceed to the city following emergency treatment.

OUR VOTE ON THE AMENDMENTS

Paste these in your hat.
We have been asked our opinion of the various amendments which will come before the people next Tuesday, and after studying the matter carefully have determined that we would advise the following course:
No. 1—State Taxation of Highway Transportation Companies. No. This would free the companies of all other taxes and would also free them of the gasoline tax. Vote No.
No. 2—Compensation of Members of the Legislature. Yes. The members do not receive enough to pay their expenses while at Sacramento during the sessions. This is not right. Vote Yes.
No. 3—Deposit of Public Monies. Yes. This would allow the deposit of public money when it is not in active use, interest would be secured thereby. Vote Yes.
No. 4—Increase of Jurisdiction of Inferior Courts. Vote Yes.
No. 5—Transferring of Public Money from one Fund to another. No. This was supposed to be a good measure, but it was so drawn that it will invalidate soldiers' bonus bills if passed. Vote No.
No. 6—Taxation of Personal Property not Secured by Real Estate. Vote Yes.
No. 7—No recommendation
No. 8—Compensation of officials. Yes. This would legalize the enactment of County Government Bills, allowing an increased number of deputies in any office when public necessity demands the same. Vote Yes.
No. 9—Taxation of Foreign Notes, Stocks or Bonds and Mortgages. Vote Yes.
No. 10—Exempting Certain Companies from Taxation. Vote No.
No. 11—Would preserve Klamath river as a fish and game preserve and prohibits the erection of dams, etc., there. Yes. Certain places should be kept in their natural state for our future citizens to enjoy. Vote Yes.
No. 12—No recommendation.
No. 13—Poll Tax of $5 on all males not paying any real or personal property tax. Yes. This would catch certain aliens who cannot hold property. Vote Yes.
No. 14—Exemption of State and Municipal Bonds from Taxation. Vote No.
No. 15—Exempting U. S. controlled aviation fields from Taxation. No. There are too many exemptions on the books now. Vote No.
No. 16—Water and Power Constitutional Amendment. No. This would mean millions more in bonds. Our bond taxes are high now. Vote No.
No. 17—The fixing of compensation in eminent domain proceedings by Railroad Commission. Vote Yes.
No. 18—Amendment to Absent Voters' Law. Vote Yes.

THE POWER OF ADVERTISING

FOR years, motorists have been led to believe that an eastern lubricating oil for automobile engines was better than lubricating oil produced in the West. Thousands of barrels of Pennsylvania lubricating oils are sold in the West, not because the public knows anything about the technical difference that may exist between a western and an eastern oil, but because automobile drivers have been told and have read for years that eastern oil furnishes better lubrication.
As eastern oil costs more, due to fact that it has to be hauled across the continent to its western consumers, buyers think they are getting a better product.
Western oil companies are among the largest in the world. Their crude oil is the same as other crude oil and their refining equipment is second to none. Hence, they should produce lubricating oils of the highest quality, but quality alone in a more or less new product will not quickly offset years of advertising of an old product with which consumers have become familiar.
Westerners, however, should be interested in developing industries in this territory and should investigate thoroughly western products not only oil but other commodities which can be produced here rather than shipping them for 3,000 miles.

Mr. Meeker, ninety-three, who made a trip to the West by ocean years ago, returned to Washington recently by airplane. Photo shows the President greeting him.

CHRISTMAS IS COMING

THE fellow who said that it was longer from New Year Christmas, than from Christmas to New Year may have been right, but we would rise up and say that it is getting mighty close to Christmas right now and it would behoove the average citizen to begin his Christmas shopping now.
We would also make bold to say that where it is all possible all of the purchases should be made right here at home. Furthermore we would remark that if you wouldn't care for some particular thing, don't buy it for someone else.
Personally, we believe that Christmas is primarily for children and gifts should be largely confined to the little folks, but at the same time close relatives should always be remembered. Promiscuous giving, just for the sake of keeping up appearances, it is not good, however, particularly at Christmas time, because finances are generally at a low ebb just about then.
But these things we would urge:
Buy Early.
Shop at Home.
Get Useful Things.
Remember the Kiddies—Mother the Wife—and then the other folks.

THE PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE will not get out and make stump speeches. Not that he thinks stump speaking is wrong, but he can't do it and won't do it. He knows his limitations and never gets out of his own depths. That is the first sign of greatness in a man. It will do no good for brainy politicians and brilliant men and brave characters to pirouette and war-dance around Coolidge. He will not be hypnotized into joining their fandango. He is what he is, what he was, and what he will be—a quiet, shrewd, brave, keen Yankee. You can't make him anything else. More than that, there is still enough Yankee blood in America to elect him.—Emporia Gazette.

AN EASTERN VIEW LEAVES NO MIDDLE GROUND

Commenting editorially upon the address of Secretary of State Hughes at Cincinnati, the Cincinnati Enquirer said:
"Mr. Hughes showed the real note of the campaign; the rule of reason, based on immutable fundamentals, or mob rule based upon caprice or passion. Between the two Senator La Follette and his cohorts have left no middle ground. There must be either orderly government under constitutional safeguards and restrictions or the certain ultimate chaos and horrors of socialism. With perfect clarity of thought and vision, Mr. Hughes declared:
"If the proposal of the third party were adopted anything you have the security of your person and life would be held at the mercy of Congress. And they call that progress."
"The definite and avowed purpose of the third party to exalt Congress above the courts and the Constitution of the United States itself brands its leadership with an unprincipled fanaticism of the nation as it is threatening to all individual liberty and protection. The secretary paints with unerring accuracy and in justified somber color the enormities that the radicals are fomenting."
"The secretary of state is an exemplar of finest American citizenship. During his long and eminently useful public career no one ever had the temerity to point to a single heinous act or utterance. He is not an alarmist. When he pleads for the preservation of constitutional government that plea is based upon sound knowledge of the destructive forces that threaten to rend it asunder. He believes along with the right-thinking Americans that there is just as little reason back of this terrifying and intemperate attempt to abrogate the fundamental law of the land as there would be in an effort to remodel or revamp the Decalogue to suit the perverted morals of the majority. Mr. Hughes will do well by his country if he continues to preach the Constitution."
"Sometimes a man finds a girl after his own heart only to find later that she really was after his pocketbook."
"True friends seldom demand favors."
"To live long, it is necessary to live slowly.—Cicero."

MISTAKES ARE MADE IN WARM WEATHER

Tests indicate High Temperatures Reduce Efficiency.
New York—Scientific tests of workers in diverse lines of endeavor show that on the hot and sultry days of summer your energy, and consequently your physical and mental efficiency, may be reduced by as much as 50 per cent, says Donald A. Laird, Ph. D., associate professor of psychology at Colgate university.
Moreover, when the thermometer registers 90 degrees or more, you are about twice as likely to make an error in work requiring concentration and accuracy as you are on days of moderate temperature.
Just why summertime is mistake time has not been determined exactly, probably it is due in part to discomfort. A more tenable explanation, however, is that the lowered efficiency is due to the changes in the metabolism, or chemical action of the body.
"It is a law of chemistry that chemical activity is speeded up by heat and retarded by cold. So at this time of year the chemical action of human bodies probably is increased to such an extent that waste products pile up more rapidly than we can absorb oxygen to destroy them. The effect of this accumulation of waste is the same as fatigue; hence, the 'three fold' that is common in the summer; the difficulty of performing work requiring concentration.
A test of the working efficiency of the clerical forces of several large banks in an Eastern city, conducted recently by a well-known scientist, showed that the number of errors made in ordinary work was low in spring, that it increased markedly during the summer, dropped again during the fall, and increased again in winter, though not to the summer maximum.
A somewhat similar test of 2,500 workers in Connecticut, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and of all the students of West Point and Annapolis was attended by a similar result.
However, a person cannot keep his efficiency at a maximum by living and working in a moderate climate the year around. Scientific investigation shows that where there is little change in temperature from day to day the quality of work gradually declines.
The human body requires change, and change in the weather, whether for better or for worse, invariably is found beneficial. Even a rainy day after a long spell of fair weather is a mental and physical spur.
She wears her hair loose, hanging down her back whenever she gets the opportunity. She gives her tresses an airing at the open window every day and in the warmer weather always dries them in the sun."

KEEP IT FRESH IN YOUR MEMORY

The habit of liberty and the long usage of prosperity have always a tendency to deaden our remembrance of the greatness of the act which inaugurated both and which still preserves them to us. Let not the lapse of time banish the memory of our mighty fathers, to whose wonderful courage, wisdom and patience we owe our rich political inheritance. They won it in the storm of battle, and through the tedious trials of self-sacrifice. They rescued it from anarchy, bankruptcy, disorders and discords which a century ago had brought upon our confederated states the pity of their friends and the disdain of their foes. The vital forces which this constitutional union created gave to our country the purer breath of a national life and the sentiment of national honor. The union supplemented the weakness of each with the strength of all. Instead of sectional banners stained with repudiation and local greed, this union gave to the whole country a single flag, destined to unsurpassed respect among the nations of the earth.—John A. Kasson, president, Constitutional Centennial Commission.

TOMBS OF OLD WARRIORS FOUND

Tombs of warriors that are believed to have fallen in battle about 500 A. D. have been discovered in connection with excavation work undertaken at Renden, near Halle, Germany. The warriors were buried with their weapons. Both the skeletons and the arms are well preserved and are to be brought to the provincial museum of Halle.

ZR-3 STARTS FOR U. S. A. ON SUNDAY MORNING—ARRIVES WEDNESDAY A. M.

Photo shows the newest Zeppelin, the ZR-3, sailing over the historic Brandenburg Gate in Berlin on its final trip, just as it probably sailed over Berlin on its way from the hangar at Friedrichshafen, where it was built to its "home" hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. (Note—ZR-3 sailed Sunday morning, October 12, 1924.)

Atlanta Boy Spoils His Funeral Service

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hinton of Atlanta, Ga., identified the body of their son, John W. Hinton, known to his pals as "Woody," aged fifteen. Insurance adjusters arranged all claims and the body was buried at Bogart, Ga., after an impressive funeral. Then, just as the mourners were boarding the train "Woody" rushed up. He had been visiting a relative. Here he is, very much alive and unburied.

Greatness Is Not to Be Gauged by Stature

Lombroso in his "Men of Genius" says that greatness and stature are rarely found together. In consulting biographies of a number of great men in American history, however, it has been found that this statement does not always apply. There have been on the whole more prominent men above middle height than below, says the Denver News. Among the short men may be numbered John Quincy Adams, Admiral Farragut, Paul Jones, Gen. Phil Sheridan, Stephen A. Douglas, William H. Seward and Martin Van Buren. On the other hand we find that Charles Sumner was 6 feet 4 inches; Thomas Jefferson, 6 feet 2 1/2 inches; Charles Godfrey Leland, 6 feet 2 1/2 inches; Andrew Jackson, 6 feet 1 inch; Samuel Adams, Salmon P. Chase and Jonathan Edwards described as "over 6 feet"; James Monroe, 6 feet 6 inches; Bayard Taylor, 6 feet at the age of seventeen; George Washington, 6 feet. Henry Ward Beecher, Rufus Choate, Benjamin Franklin were slightly under 6 feet. Daniel Webster and Patrick Henry were about 5 feet 10.

WISE SAYINGS OF THE GREAT

Put all your eggs in one basket and then watch the basket.—Andrew Carnegie.
The people's safety is the law of God.—James Otis.
It is only rogues who feel the restraint of law.—J. G. Holland.
The law—it has honored us, may we honor it.—Daniel Webster.
Where law ends, there tyranny begins.—Earl of Chatham.
They laugh that win. Sinks spares.
Mind moves matter.—Virel.
The pen is the tongue of the mind.—Cervantes.
Necessity is often the spur to genius.—Balzac.
Grant but memory to us, and we can lose nothing by death.—Whitler.
What exile from his country is able to escape from himself.—Shakespeare.
Necessity never made a good bargain.—Franklin.
Modesty is the conscience of the body.—Balzac.
The good need fear no law; it is his safety, and the bad men's awe.—Ben Johnson.
A mind once cultivated will not lie fallow for half an hour.—Babwer Lytton.
I like the laughter that does the lips and the heart—that shows at the same time pearls and the soul.—Victor Hugo.
'Tis but a base ignoble mind that mounts no higher than a bird can soar.—Shakespeare.
The wind is the master of every kind of fortune; itself is in both ways, being the cause of its own happiness and misery, success.
A weak mind is like a spinning top, which magnifies trifling things, but cannot receive great ones.—Chestfield.
Old age, especially an honored old age, has so great authority that this is of more value than all the pleasures of youth.—Cicero.

Alas, Quite Uncivilized

If there is any doubt that the inhabitants of New Guinea are uncivilized beings, we need cite only their attitude toward paying taxes—which, according to the Argonaut, is as follows:

Travelers in New Guinea occasionally pick up good stories concerning native manners and peculiarities. A tax collector had an amusing experience when he was on his rounds. He had been to one village to collect taxes, and when he left he was met by the people of a neighboring village.

"What wrong have we done that we should be ignored by the government?" they asked. "Come, we have money; we will show it to you. The idea of those Kerepuna people paying taxes and when he left he was met by the people of a neighboring village.

The tax collector had to pay them by taking their money.—Youth's Companion.

Goths a Divided Race

The Goths were a warlike race which at one time inhabited the country in the vicinity of the Baltic and afterward moved toward the Black sea and the lower Danube where, about 250 B. C., it divided into two branches. Those that remained in the eastern part of the Roman empire were termed western (Visi) Goths, says the Kansas City Times. The Ostrogoths, after ravaging eastern Europe, established under Theodoric a kingdom in Italy which lasted from 493 to 554 A. D., when the country was recovered by the Romans and annexed to the eastern empire. The Visigoths, after various successes against the Romans, sacked Rome under Alaric in 410. They afterward settled in Spain and founded a kingdom that lasted until that country was conquered by the Saracens.

Gibbet Superseded Cross

Crucifixion as a method of punishing criminals remained in force throughout the Roman empire until the early part of the Fourth century. The death by the cross was abolished by the Emperor Constantine and was replaced by the gibbet, which continued as a means of execution until comparatively recent times. It figures frequently in the history of England. It was also used as an instrument of punishment in the British colonies and was so employed in the island of Newfoundland, where there are several "Gibbet Hills," marking the site of hangings.

Alice Longworth Is Writing Her Memoirs

Mrs. Alice Longworth, daughter of the late President Roosevelt, has joined the army of woman writers of the country and is writing her memoirs. There is no woman in the country who has had a more interesting life than Mrs. Longworth, first as the daughter of a President and then the wife of a distinguished member of congress. From the days her father first entered politics Mrs. Longworth has attended every Democratic and Republican convention, and she has watched from the gallery the action of the senate and house in the capitol.

Courtesy Among Kaffirs

In Africa when one hears a native host say to his departing guests: "Hamba gache" (Go in peace) and the response of the guest, "Hamba gache" (Return in peace) it is hard to imagine oneself among untamed savages—if one keeps one's eyes closed. A courtesy peculiar to the native African is his manner of receiving even the most trifling gift. No matter how small the object, he receives it with both hands cupped together like a bowl. Try it. It is most expressive.

Advertising Pills Church in Scotland

Iverness, a highland town of Scotland, which contains 37 churches to care for its 24,000 inhabitants, had much to teach the advertisers whose recent convention in London dealt lengthily with the problem of church advertising. For a quarter of a century these churches have experienced such competition that they have been compelled to initiate. However, the method most used has nothing to do with advertising agencies. It is entirely one of sending out samples in the hope that the church goer will want more. The minister or one of his supporters stands on a street corner and delivers short sermons or announcements, while the perfunctory congregation passing about hand bills. This advertising evidently pays, for almost everyone in Iverness goes to church.

you can't trust this but you can trust ICE!

There isn't a single day in the year when it's safe to leave food in the so-called "kitchen cooler." Even if foods do not spoil they are exposed to dust and germ-laden air that is dangerous, and they lose much of their flavor and food value. Without ice, foods cannot be kept safely.

HER WONDERFUL AIM

A certain dear old lady always made it her business to visit the poor patients in the hospital.

On one occasion she approached a much bandaged individual, who was sitting up in bed, and after a little preliminary talk she said to him, very sympathetically, "I suppose your wife must miss you a good deal."

"No, mum," came the prompt reply; she got a wonderful aim for a woman!—Tid-Bits.

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

The rain fall for the recent storm was 56 of an inch, making a total of 2.25 inches for the season which is considerably below normal.

Mrs. Walter H. Linforth and her pretty daughter, Walthea, left during the week for Portland for a short stay. On their return to Menlo Park they will stop at the home here and accompanied by Mr. Linforth will leave for the city, where they will spend the winter in apartments at the Palace Hotel.

Members of a former sewing club at Menlo Park, made up of Trinity Church women, will hold a reunion Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Cora Parker. Miss Mary Byrne will be hostess. The club has not met for 10 or 12 years.

Mrs. Charles Merrill of Menlo Park entertained about 30 friends at luncheon Sunday in honor of Mrs. A. G. C. Hahn, who recently returned from a trip abroad.

The citizens of Menlo Park are planning a campaign for a new depot at this point. The present building known as a depot is a disgrace to any community, reflecting credit upon the Southern Pacific Company for maintaining such a structure. A committee is soon to call upon the company to ask for a new and modern station. The company cannot possibly refuse the request.

The quail season starts today. There are several large flocks in the foothills back of Menlo Park that will be hunted today and tomorrow. Many hunters where the birds are said to be quite plentiful. Good shooting is anticipated there. Many years ago that place was the scene for the San Francisco hunt and was considered the best full section in the state.

Andrew Monte's place, known as the "beautifol cottage de luxe" was raided on Tuesday by prohibition officers. The resort has been watched for some time by federal authorities. It is said the place was frequented by Stanford students.

The divorce of Mr. and Mrs. E. Trabucco at Redwood City on Wednesday was a decided surprise to the people of Menlo Park, where the couple lived for a time. Before her marriage Mrs. Trabucco was Mrs. Dorothy Douglas, the pretty and charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Douglas. Trabucco is the son of Judge Trabucco of Marin county. The decree was granted after a 20-minute hearing by Superior Judge George Buck in Redwood City Wednesday. Mrs. Trabucco obtained custody of the two children, Madeline, 3, and Eugene Jr., 4, except for one month in the year, when they were to go to the father. No alimony was asked by Mrs. Trabucco and there was no community property.

News of the rift in the marital life of the Cheever Cowdin family has caused much surprise here as it was thought the marriage in Menlo Park in 1912 was an ideal one and one that would avoid the rocks of the matrimonial seas to the end of life's journey, but no doubt should have been encountered by the frail bark on the stormy billows. It finally went aground on the island of incompatibility of temperament. Mrs. Cowdin was formerly the pretty Florence Hopkins, youngest daughter of E. W. Hopkins, a former resident of Menlo Park. She was born in Menlo Park and grew to beautiful womanhood here. Her debut number of years ago was a brilliant affair, a society event that is remembered to this day by those who attended it. The marriage was no less an important event. The ceremony was performed at Trinity Episcopal church here and the reception was held afterwards at the Hopkins home on Oak Grove ave. The Hopkins are living in New York. Their eleven-year-old boy is attending a private boarding school in the east.

The Southern Pacific Company's time schedule goes into effect today. There are only a few changes in the regular time, so that commuters need not be worried over catching their train these chilly mornings.

Mrs. George Brackley left during the week for her childhood home at Columbus, Ohio, for a brief visit. She will return to her Menlo home before the holidays.

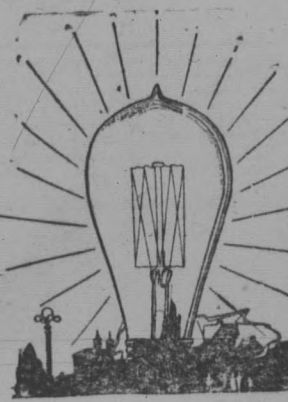

Mr. J. Linforth, who passed away in San Francisco this week, was a brother of Walter H. Linforth, the well-known attorney. He was a banker in San Francisco for a number of years and was highly respected by his friends and associates.

The Menlo Park Realty Company, composed of prominent realtors of Redwood City, Menlo Park, Palo Alto and San Francisco, has established offices in the Stribling building on the highway. The company has listed some choice realty in Menlo Park and vicinity. It hopes to build up a large business. The building of Dumbarton bridge has prompted the concern to locate here, knowing that a big boom will follow in the wake of the bridge.

The recent rains have started the mushrooms growing and numerous black fungi are being gathered on the uncultivated lands. The toothsome fungus is the delight of every table.

The dance tonight in Duff and Doyle hall under the auspices of the Menlo Park Improvement Club promises to be largely attended by dancers from all parts of the peninsula. A jazz orchestra will furnish the music.

A big vote will be polled in Menlo Park next Tuesday for Coolidge and Dewey, the nominees of the republican party. Every citizen should so to the polls and cast his ballot for his candidate. The election will place the stamp of approval upon the administration of Calista Coolidge, who will sweep the country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Look for a Coolidge landslide on next Tuesday.

A St. Joseph School will give a dance in Duff and Doyle hall on November 5. The young folks are planning for a large attendance and are looking forward to an enjoyable evening. The music is to be the best. Come and enjoy yourself.

The "Peppers" on Santa Cruz ave. belonging to the C. W. Smith estate was sold last week to a client of Mark A. McMen, the realty broker who negotiated the sale. The new owner is to develop the property. It consists of forty acres, substantial dwellings and well-kept grounds. The arched orchard in front of the home is known for the quality and size of its fruit. Mr. Smith purchased the realty many years ago and it was his pride and joy during his life time. The happiest moments of his career were the arched orchards of the famous Hostetters' Bitters, that was used a decade ago by almost everyone. From the sale of this drug he accumulated a fortune. Mr. Smith for years was the head of the wholesale drug firm of Redding and Company of San Francisco.
